Product description

For almost 3 centuries, the Hampden Estate has been producing rums of different flavor profiles and levels of esters. All these formulas are identified with specific unique acronyms, or "marques." LROK refers to Light Rum Owen Kelly, the 'lighter' formula created by the legendary master distiller of the end of 19th century. It's a medium/high-intensity white rum with a content of 350 grams of esters per hectoliter of pure alcohol.

LROK White is a complex rum at high proof which can be consumed in different ways: neat (to appreciate all its bouquet), with few ice cubes (to get it fresher and slightly diluted, perhaps with a zest of lime), or in cocktails. It could give a new expression to classic rum cocktails or also the base for completely new recipes. Hampden Estate LROK White's unusual flavor profile and intensity makes it a versatile spirit for enjoyment across many different serves.
